• The University of Hawaii at Manoa Library, in partnership with the University Computing Center, opened a new Computerized Learning and Information Center in February. Students, faculty and staff can use the Center's equipment to access information via computer workstations and related equipment. Computer-assisted instruction programs involving software that aids skill development are being emphasized. Faculty are encouraged to deposit "reserve" copies of their own programs or commercially purchased software (within copyright limitations). The CLIC features

80 workstations incorporating IBM and Macintosh PCs as well as dumb terminals, dot matrix and laser printers, and nine PLATO terminals.

• The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio now offers access to the Micromedex Corporation's Computerized Clinical Information System. The CCIS database contains information on drugs, poisonings, and emergency treatment through the DRUGDEX, POISINDEX, and EMERGINDEX files, and is available to authorized users of the library's VAX system at any library terminal. CCIS is generally located in hospitals and emergency centers. ■■

Profiles

MARY LOU GOODYEAR, assistant director for instruction and research services at the Auraria Library of the University of Colorado, has been appointed assistant director for public services at Iowa State University, Ames.

Goodyear's accomplishments at the Auraria Library have included the implementation of a cooperative online public access catalog, a continuing program of staff development for supervisors, and an organization development planning project for library faculty. She also initiated a document delivery service for students and faculty.

A graduate of Graceland College (1974), Goodyear received an MLS (1975) and a master's degree in public administration (1981) from the University of Missouri. She will receive a doctorate in public administration from the University of Colorado this year.

From 1981 to 1983 Goodyear was head of the Reference Department at Wichita State University and was previously a reference librarian (1979-1981) at Stephens College and at the University of Missouri (1976-1979). She has been a library consultant and has authored articles in several professional journals and given presentations.

PAUL H. MOSHER, deputy director of libraries at Stanford University since 1985, has been named vice provost and director of the library system at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia. At Penn, Mosher will be responsible for a system encompassing 15 libraries containing more than three million volumes.

Mosher joined the staff at Stanford in 1975 as assistant director for collection development and later became director for collection development and director for research services. He was assistant professor of history at the University of Washington from 1966 to 1975, serving as chairman of its Medieval and Renaissance Studies Group. Mosher has also spent many summers as visiting professor at Trinity College's Rome, Italy, campus.

A regular lecturer in Stanford's Religious Studies Program, Mosher has received numerous awards and distinctions, including a Fulbright-Hays Senior Research Scholarship in Italy (1971), and the Blackwell North America Scholarship for the best article in the area of library resources (1984).

Mosher is a member of the ALA Planning Committee, the Resources and Technical Services Division's Publications Committee, and the RTSD Nominating Committee, of which he was chairman for 1983-1984.

J. DANIEL VANN III, executive director of libraries and learning resources at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, since 1981, has been named director of library services at Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania.

An 1957 graduate of the University of North Carolina, Vann has master's (1959) and Ph.D. (1965) degrees in history from Yale University, an MLS (1971) from Emory University, and has also pursued advanced study at Teachers College, Columbia University, and postdoctoral work at Stanford University.

Vann has led library automation and building efforts as director of the Baptist College at Charleston (1966-1969), Keuka College (1969-1971), and at Staten Island Community College/CUNY (1971-1976), where he later became professor of library science (1976-1979). Vann was appointed head librarian of the Lockwood Library at the State University of New York at Buffalo in 1979 and was appointed assistant director for planning the following year.

Prior to his library career, which began as a bibliographer for European history and literature at the Newberry Library, Vann taught European history at several liberal arts colleges.

Active on professional boards and committees, Vann has been an ACRL Board member (1976-1978) and has served on the Choice Editorial Board (1977-1978) and as a member of the Academic/Research Librarian of the Year Award Committee (1978), the Conference Program Planning Committee (1977-78), the Membership Committee (chair, 1978-1980), and the Standards and Accreditation Committee (1984-1986). He has also been chair of the Community and Junior College Libraries Section (1977-1978), and held a variety of CJCLS positions from 1973 to 1983.

Vann is also a member of several other ALA Divisions and has served on numerous library and university committees.

WINSTON TABB, chief of the Information and Reference Division of the Copyright Office at the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., has been appointed chief of the Loan Division, effective March 14. He succeeds Olive James, who is now library director at San Francisco State University (see C&RL News, October 1987, p. 575).

Tabb came to the Library of Congress in 1972 as a participant in the Library's Intern Program for outstanding library school graduates. Upon completion, he worked as a reference specialist in the Congressional Research Service, becoming congressional research administrator (1974-1975). Tabb was subsequently appointed team leader of the Congressional Reading Room and in 1977 became administrator of CAS's Inquiry Section. The following year he was appointed assistant chief of the Library's General Reading Rooms Division, and has served as chief of the Information and Reference Division since 1984.

Appointed vice chair of the Management and Planning Committee in January of this year, Tabb has also served as chairman of the Librarian's Task Force Subcommittee on Services to Staff (1976). He received Meritorious Service Awards in 1980 and 1987 and has consistently earned outstanding performance ratings since 1978. An ALA member, Tabb is also a member of Beta Phi Mu and the District of Columbia Library Association.

Tabb is a 1963 magna cum laude graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University and holds a master's degree in American literature from Harvard University (1964) and an MLS from Simmons College (1972). He has also been Harvard's director of summer admissions and served with the U.S. Army during 1966-1968.

People in the News

N. BERNARD BASCH, president of Turner Subscriptions, New York City, has been appointed to the National Council for the Olin Library of Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri. The National Library Council will be chaired by a member of the University's Board of Trustees and will include people whose expertise and experience will help guide the library system into the next century. The Council plans to review both current and future library programs.

TONI CARBO BEARMAN, dean of the School of Library and Information Science at the University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, has been appointed to the U.S. Commerce Department's Advisory Committee on Patents and Trademarks. Bearman will join 16 others in advising the Patent and Trademark Office on a broad range of policy matters relating to both domestic and foreign issues.

DAVID A. DAY, music librarian at Brigham Young University, Salt Lake City, Utah, is the third recipient of the Music Library Association's Walter Gerboth Award, intended to support research by a member in the first five years of his or her career. Day is preparing an annotated catalog of the printed and manuscript opera and ballet collection of the Théâtre de la Monnaie, housed at the Archives de la ville in Brussels.

WILSEARCH[®]

Software For Access To The Wilson Databases

Direct Access for Your Patrons— Ready Reference for You

Menu-driven WILSEARCH software makes electronic information retrieval a real alternative to traditional reference sources. Easy-to-use and inexpensive, WILSEARCH is a practical reference tool for both patrons and staff in public, school, and college libraries.

Your Direct Line to Three Million Online Records

With no prior search experience, you can use WILSEARCH to search a total of 19 separate databases containing information on fields from law and business to engineering and art, as well as extensive coverage of general literature, including:

- More than half a million articles in 3,500 periodicals indexed each year
- Over 80,000 books cataloged annually
- A total of more than 3 million records to date!

Now Available for Apple[™] or IBM[™] Computers

The same easy-to-use, affordable WILSEARCH service is now available for use with the popular Apple IIe computer. Whether your high school, college, or public library has the Apple IIe system, an IBM PC, or an IBM compatible computer, you can make independent patron access a reality. And, with the fixed-cost, menu-driven WILSEARCH format allowing you to monitor the number of references found and arrange for patron charges, WILSEARCH is an ideal introduction to electronic information retrieval for patrons and a valuable teaching tool for school libraries.

ELLEN GAY DETLEFSEN, associate professor in the School of Library and Information Science at the University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and ALA executive director THOMAS J. GALVIN, former SLIS dean, have received a 1988 George Eliot Prize for co-authoring an article on health science and biomedical librarianship. The article, "Education for the Health Sciences/Biomedical Librarianship: Past, Present, and Future," appeared in the April 1986 issue of the Bulletin of the Medical Library Association. The prize is administered annually by the Login Brothers Book Company for the most outstanding contribution to the field of medical librarianship.

IRENE B. HOADLEY, director of the library at Texas A&M University, College Station, is the first holder of a newly endowed chair for the directorship, funded by Sterling C. Evans, for whom the library is named, and by John and Sara Lindsey of Houston. Hoadley has been director at Texas A&M for the past 14 years. Another chair, also endowed by Evans and the Lindseys, will be held by Frank E. Vandiver, who will relinquish the presidency of the university later this year.

JOHN P. MC GOWAN, university librarian at Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, has been installed as the first recipient of the newly endowed Charles Deering McCormick Distinguished Chair of Research Librarianship. McGowan was named university librarian in 1971. He had served in the Technological Institute Library at Northwestern from 1956 to 1959 and then as director at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia before returning to Northwestern as associate university librarian. A past president of the ALA's Reference and Adult Services Division, McGowan has also served as chair of the Board of Governors of the Research Libraries Group, and currently chairs the conference of library directors representing the institutions that form the Committee on Institutional Cooperation. He was instrumental in the creation of NOTIS, Northwestern's highly successful automated system, and has authored and presented many papers on library automation and information technology.

SAMUEL ROTHSTEIN, professor in the School of Library, Archival and Information Studies at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, has received the 1988 Award for Outstanding Professional Contributions to Library and Information Science Education from the Association for Library and Information Science Education. The award was presented at the annual ALISE conference in San Antonio, Texas.

HAROLD B. SHILL, Evansdale librarian and associate professor of library science at West Virginia University, Morgantown, has received the 17th annual Dora Ruth Parks Award for Outstanding Service to Libraries and Librarianship in West Virginia. The award was given primarily for Shill's contributions as federal regulations coordinator for the West Virginia Library Association, a post he has held since 1973. Shill is chair of the ACRL Legislation Committee and the ALA Legislation Assembly.

ARLEEN SOMERVILLE, head of science and engineering libraries and chemistry librarian at the University of Rochester, New York, is the 1988 chairman of the Division of Chemical Information of the American Chemical Society. Somerville is the first academic librarian to be elected an officer in the Division. She participated in the 8th International Conference on Computers in Chemical Research in Education held in Beijing in June, 1987, and was invited to lecture at the Institute of Photographic Chemistry in Beijing on the topic of searching computerized chemical databases.

Retirements

JOHN R. TURNER ETTLINGER, professor in the School of Library and Information Studies at Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, has retired as professor emeritus effective at the end of last year. Ettlenger is the first library school faculty member to be so honored, and is the last remaining member of the school's original faculty. In 1969, when the library school was founded, he was collections librarian in the university library, a position he assumed in 1966. Prior to then Ettlenger had held several positions in rare books, bibliography, and special collections at Brown, McGill, and Columbia Universities. At Dalhousie, he specialized in teaching collection development and the history of the printed book. Beside writing on early books and prints, Ettlenger's bibliographical publications include substantial works on young peoples' literature and on Canadian imprints. The latter form part of the multi-volume Checklist of Canadian Copyright Materials in the British Museum, 1895-1923, being published by the School of Library and Information Studies.

LOIS E. GODFREY, assistant head librarian at the Los Alamos National Laboratory, New Mexico, has retired after 34 years of service. Godfrey was involved in every phase of library operations there, including planning of the new library, which opened in 1977, and the planning and implementation of the library's automated systems. Active in the Special Libraries Association since 1950, she served on many committees and was a charter member of the Rio Grande Chapter, serving twice as its president. Godfrey was also president of the New Mexico Library Association during 1978-1979; was secretary of the New Mexico Library and Audiovisual Education Council (1969-1971); and was a member of the Task Force on a New Mexico Inter-Library Cooperative System (1977-1978). She currently serves as member and vice-chair of the New Mexico Advisory Council on Libraries, and was New Mexico's librarian of the year in 1983. Co-editor of the first and second editions of SLA's Dictionary of Report Series Codes, Godfrey has authored and edited a number of other publications and articles.

YVONNE GREEAR, assistant university librarian for public services at the University of Texas at El Paso since 1971, retired March 1. Greear first came to the library as an administrative secretary to the Librarian in 1950, and completes more than 30 years of service, interrupted during 1955 and 1956 when she studied library service at the University of Texas at Austin. She also worked intermittently in private industry and military libraries around El Paso before returning to the university permanently in 1964. Named librarian of the year by the Border Regional Library Association, Greear was awarded the Distinguished Service to the University Award in 1987 from the UT-El Paso Chapter of Sigma Xi, a national honor society for science and engineering.

BARBARA M. IVEY, acquisitions librarian at the U.S. Air Force Academy Library, Colorado Springs, will retire June 3 of this year after 31 years of service as a federal librarian. Ivey has worked in libraries in Japan, France, Italy, Germany, the Netherlands, and at various U.S. locations. During a break in federal service from 1967 to 1969, she was director of the Fort Vancouver Regional Library in Washington state.

MARY ANNA KRAUSE, selector for Anglo-American Law in the Law Library at Harvard University, retired in September, 1987, after 26 years of service. Krause had held the position since 1981, and was formerly acquisitions librarian. She has been a member of law library professional associations and served on the University Library's Communications and Orientation Committee.

WILLIAM MAYLES, science, engineering and technology librarian at Indiana University/Purdue University at Indianapolis, retired April 30.

Deaths

MERLE BARTLETT, former catalog librarian at the Library of Congress and California State University, Northridge, died March 6.

CHARMAINE STANDER BOYD, retired coordinator of user services at Prince George's Community College, Largo, Maryland, died February 16. Boyd served at PGCC for 19 years and was an active member of ALA and the Maryland and District of Columbia Library Associations. She served as MLA president during 1978–1979 and also as president of its Academic and Research Libraries Division. In 1981 she received the Maryland Library Association Award, its outstanding honor, and received the MLA Distinguished Service Citation in 1987, the year she retired. Boyd was the founder of the D.C. Citizen Advocates for Libraries.

WILLIAM JENNINGS CHALKER, former director of the library at Jacksonville University, Florida, died March 6 at age 73. Chalker served at Jacksonville from 1961 until his retirement in 1978. He received a bachelor's degree from the University of Florida in 1937 and a bachelor's in library science (1950) and MLS (1951) from George Peabody College for Teachers. Chalker served in the U.S. Army during World War II and was newspaper librarian for the Nashville Tennessean during 1950–1951 before serving as director of the library at New York State College at Fredonia from 1951 to 1960.

ROBERT ESTELLE, audiovisual curator for university archives at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, died February 14 in St. Paul at the age of 62. Estelle received a bachelor's degree in education and master's and doctoral degrees in Spanish from the University of Minnesota, and joined the Department of Spanish and Portuguese in 1963. From 1967 to 1984 he was director of the Learning Resources Center, which under his leadership was incorporated into the University Libraries and expanded its services to include both the Minneapolis and St. Paul Campuses.

MARIAN HARMAN, professor of library administration emerita and honorary curator of incunabula at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, died February 27. Harman retired in 1969 from her position as rare book librarian, and had served formerly as head of the Cataloging Department. Her interest in rare books continued and culminated in the publication in 1979 of her Incunabula in the University of Illinois Library at Urbana-Champaign, distributed by the University of Illinois Press.

VIRGINIA HAVILAND, the first chief of the Children's Literature Center at the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., died January 6 at her home in Washington. Haviland came to the Library in 1963 to establish and develop a center for the study of literature for children, having previously served in several capacities at the Boston Public Library. At the Library of Congress she developed a comprehensive collection of books relating to English and foreign-language children's books; histories; critical studies; works on writing and illustrating children's books; studies of folklore, storytelling, children's reading, and book selection; basic catalogs and indexes; and selective and special subject lists. Haviland was the author of Children's Literature: A Guide to Reference Sources (1966), and succeeding supplements.

ROSEMARY NEISWENDER, former cataloger in the Technical Services Division at the University of California, Los Angeles, died January 31. Neiswender worked in the library, initially as Slavic bibliographer in the Bibliographers Group, from 1968 until her retirement in 1983.

FELIX POLLACK, assistant professor emeritus and former curator of rare books at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, died November 19, 1987, at the age of 78. A native of Austria, Pollack pursued careers in the law and the theatre, studying under Max Reinhardt, before fleeing the Nazi invasion in 1938. He earned a bachelor's degree in library science in Buffalo, New York, and later served in the U.S. Army as an interpreter. Pollack earned his MLS from the University of Michigan and in 1948 was appointed curator of special collections at Northwestern University. At Northwestern he supervised the development of the department's collections to reflect his broad interests as a bookman, writer, translator and poet. Pollack returned to Vienna during the winter of 1955–56 to pass his final examination for his doctorate of law. He came to Wisconsin in 1959 and was instrumental in developing the library's Sokov collection of little magazines and small press editions. Known as a tireless defender of small presses and magazines, Pollack contributed poetry, essays, aphorisms and translations to more than 100 such publications, including American Poetry Review, Poetry Northwest, and Prairie Schooner. His poems were widely anthologized and were translated into French, German, Italian, Japanese, Russian and Hungarian. Pollack also wrote seven books of poetry between 1963 and 1988.

DAVID E. POWNALL, chief librarian at the Melbourne CAE Carlton Campus (formerly Melbourne State College), Australia, from 1976 to 1986, died January 2 at the age of 62. A professional cellist with the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D.C., before becoming a librarian, Pownall worked in several reader services positions before becoming director of library services at Hofstra University (1973–1976). In Australia he became involved in the development of reciprocal borrowing arrangements. Pownall's publications included the seven-volume Articles in Twentieth Century Literature: An Annotated Bibliography, and its three-volume supplement, due for publication this year.

DORIS RANSOM, former senior descriptive cataloger in Processing Services at the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., died December 27, 1987, in Colorado. Ransom, who retired in 1981 after 22 years of service, joined the Descriptive Cataloging Division in 1965, first as a cataloger and then as a unit supervisor in the English Language Section. She was made senior descriptive

A graduate of the University of Missouri, Ransom received an MLS from the University of Michigan in 1949 and came to the Library of Congress in 1949 as one of the first interns in the Special Recruit Program. She later transferred to the Copyright Office as a cataloger in the former Book Section. From 1953 to 1965, Ransom worked as a documents cataloger at Oregon State University, as chief catalog librarian at Emory University, and as head of the Catalog Department at the University of Cincinnati. At the Library of Congress she received several outstanding performance ratings, and served ALA as chair of the Council of Regional Groups of the Resources and Technical Services Division from 1963 to 1966. ■■

PUBLICATIONS

• Basic Statistics for Librarians, by I.S. Simpson (256 pages, 3d ed., April 1988), will help the library manager to make informed decisions on such issues as the use of core collections, coverage and overlap of abstracting journals, and book repair fund allocation. Each statistical operation is presented in the context of practical library applications, with numerous examples and illustrations. The basic operations covered are: tables and graphs, averages, dispersion, sampling, probability, statistical tests, analyses of variance, time series, correlations, regression, bibliometrics, and computer packages. Co-published by Clive Bingley, Ltd., and ALA Publishing. Cost: $25. Contact ALA Publishing Services, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611-2795. ISBN 0-8389-2100-0.

• Carolina Bays, Mima Mounds, Submarine Canyons, and Other Topographical Phenomena, compiled by William R. Corliss (245 pages, January 1988), is a catalog and bibliography of nearly 70 topographical anomalies such as patterned ground, astroblemes, glacial eskers, curious columnar structures, horseshoe-shaped depressions, and oriented lakes. Each category is rated in terms of anomalousness, briefly described, and supplemented with a representative list of scientific sources. • The Collection Development Policy Statement for Arizona State University Libraries (243 pages, 1987) contains both narrative policies and LC class displays of collection levels. The format of the statement is modeled on that of the University of California, Berkeley, and is the result of an extensive curriculum content analysis and survey of faculty research activities. Copies may be ordered for $15 from the Arizona State University Libraries, Collection Development, Tempe, AZ 85287.

• The Directory of Library and Information Professionals, published in CD-ROM format (March 1988), provides recent data on approximately 45,000 individuals in the information community. The database is a collaborative project of Research Publications and the American Library Association, with special help from the Special Libraries Association, American Society for Information Science, Information Industry Association, Medical Library Association, Canadian Library Association, and 20 other associations in North America. The software is designed for use with stand-alone CD-ROM and magnetic disk desktop databases. It has full Boolean search capability, with field and numeric range searching, save set capability, and cross-tabulations for on-screen variable analysis. An IBM or compatible microcomputer with 640K RAM, DOS 3.1 or higher, and a CD-ROM disk drive are the requirements. Demonstration floppy diskettes are available for $20, applicable to the purchase of the full database (price $495). Contact ALA Publishing Services, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611-2795. ISBN 0-8389-0486-6.
