RUTHERFORD D. ROGERS assumes the position of University Librarian at Yale University July 1, 1969. For five years Stanford University has been graced by one of the most able librarians in the field—a man whom Edward G. Freehafer described as combining “excellence with intelligence, success with modesty. As an administrator, he guides with a gentle rein and under his direction things seem to fall naturally into their proper places.” This is an accurate assessment, and no higher compliment can be bestowed. Rudy deserves all of the many accolades that he has received in his brilliant career.

In characterizing his career and his personality one seeks for such words as “gentleman,” “scholar,” “humanist”; yet these fall short of measuring the man. He is a combination of warm colleague, kind friend, and library administrator par excellence. With a keen mind, sharpness of perception, clarity in the spoken word, and lucid precision in writing, he has a singular ability to cut to the essence of a problem and a notable knack of keeping basic priorities of effort from being dissipated in useful but peripheral efforts. The result is that a library organization moves forward in strides. His years at Stanford enabled the institution to establish sharply increased levels of library performance, rate of growth, quality of staff, and, aided by the grace of his personality, to obtain for the library the enthusiastic backing by the University administration of a new level of library endeavor. Yale is to be congratulated on its choice.

Rudy was President of the Association of Research Libraries in 1967-68, and a member of its Board of Directors for the past three years. He has been Second Vice-President of the American Library Association in 1965-66; Chairman of the ARL Liaison Committee with the National Advisory Commission on Libraries in 1966-67; a member of the ALA Executive Board 1961-65; a Trustee of the ALA Endowment Fund 1966-68; Chairman of the Joint Libraries Committee on Fair Use in Photocopying, 1964-66; and a member of the USOE Advisory Committee for Title II of Library Services and Construction Act for California since 1965. He has been active in the Bibliographical Society of America, the Archons of Colophon, the Grolier Club, the Cosmos Club, the Roxburghe Club of San Francisco, and the Book Club of California, as well as being a founding member of the United States Capitol Historical Society. He may have played a sparkling game of tennis in Washington, but he is also known on the West Coast as a formidable golf partner and a fanatical basketball fan.

California's loss is clearly Connecticut's gain, and his many close friends at Stanford University will miss Rudy and Margaret and their daughter, Janie, who have for five years been such a gracious part of the University and the Bay Area.—David C. Weber, Stanford University.

INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTS DIVISION, THE NATIONAL CASH REGISTER COMPANY

A lot of colleges are buying library books when they should be buying libraries.

When you order your books through the Xerox College Library Program, all you do to set up your library is unpack it.

We can send you the complete 2,000-volume Choice Opening Day Collection*, along with 4,500 enrichment titles (including Choice's Outstanding Academic Books and 500 out-of-print titles from the ALA booklist, Books for College Libraries).

By ordering your library from us, you save yourself the time and trouble of going through hundreds of catalogs and booklists. And you save your college the expense of having thousands of orders typed up and mailed out.

Every book is listed in one annotated catalog. All of them—or as few as 100—can be had with one order.

And every book comes fully cataloged and processed to LC standards.

If you're about to start a new college library—or add to an existing one—write for the free Xerox College Library Program Catalog.

Then, you'll be able to stop buying your library book by book. And start buying your books by the library.

APPRENTICE SURVEYORS

Names of 115 librarians who would welcome opportunities to serve as apprentice surveyors have been collected by the ACRL Committee on Library Surveys. These are persons who wrote in response to an invitation from the Committee in the November 1968 issue of CURL News; they are located in 33 states and 2 Canadian provinces, and their interests and special qualifications are as diverse as the problems encountered in surveys of college and university libraries.

Collection of the names was the first step in an effort by the Committee to increase the number of well qualified surveyors by providing opportunities for experience. The Committee recommends that each survey team include an apprentice member, and invites directors of surveys to draw upon its roster. It will welcome opportunities to suggest names of prospective apprentices who seem to be particularly well prepared to contribute to any survey that is being planned. Requests for information should be addressed to Edwin E. Williams, Chairman, ACRL Committee on Library Surveys, Widener Library 183, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass. 02138. ■■

ACRL/JCLS PRECONFERENCE

"New Strategies for Learning: the Impact of Instructional Technology Upon the Junior College" will be the theme of a preconference sponsored by the American Association of Junior Colleges and the Association of College and Research Libraries at Atlantic City from June 19-21. Planned to stimulate dialogue between administrators, faculty, librarians and media specialists; the two days of sessions will include demonstrations, concurrent workshops, and contact with resource persons. Major presentations will be made by Bill J. Priest, chancellor, Dallas County Junior College District, Dallas, Texas; Gabriel Ofesh, chairman, department of educational technology, Catholic University, Washington, D.C.; James Zigerall, Dean, TV College, Chicago City College; and Carol Zion, assistant to the vice-president, Miami Dade Junior College.

Maurice B. Mitchell, chancellor of the University of Denver and former president and editorial director of Encyclopaedia Britannica, will speak at the banquet to be held in connection with the preconference on Friday, June 20. Attendance is limited to 500 persons, and the registration fee, including three meals, is $50. Reservation forms and information may be requested from the Association of College and Research Libraries, American Library Association, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611. ■■
