CARLTON C. ROCHELL has been appointed dean of libraries at New York University, according to an announcement by John C. Saw-

Carlton C. Rochell

As dean of libraries, Dr. Rochell will be responsible for the NYU library system, including the central Elmer Holmes Bobst Library located on Washington Square South. Designed by architects Philip C. Johnson and Richard Foster, the twelve-story red sandstone structure was opened in September 1973 and is the only major research library to have been built in New York City in thirty-five years. Planned for a total capacity of 2.5 million volumes, the Bobst Library currently houses 1.8 million volumes and provides study space for 4,000 students.

A native of Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, the forty-two-year-old new dean of libraries is an alumnus of George Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee, and earned both M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in librarianship and political science from Florida State University at Tallahassee. He also did postgraduate work in urban studies at Georgia State University at Atlanta.

Before becoming director of the Atlanta Public Library in 1968, Dr. Rochell, a navy veteran, served as director of the public libraries of Hattiesburg, Mississippi; Anniston, Alabama; and Knoxville, Tennessee. He has also taught in two universities in Atlanta—Emory and Atlanta—and at Florida State University.

A contributor to numerous professional periodicals, Dr. Rochell is the author of several books on librarianship, including Without Walls/Without Barriers, written under a fellowship from the Council on Library Resources and Information Systems for New Towns, for Syracuse University.

hill, the university's president. The new dean, who assumed his duties on August 1, 1976, comes to NYU from Atlanta, Georgia, where he has been director of the Atlanta Public Library for the past eight years, earning a reputation as an innovative librarian, an energetic administrator, and a dedicated civic leader.

Dr. Rochell's professional activities include serving as consultant/panelist for the National Endowment for the Humanities' National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities. He also served in a similar capacity for the U.S. Office of Education. The librarian vice-president of the American Library Trustee Association, he is also a member of the Accreditation Visiting Team, the Standards Committee, and other committees of the American Library Association.

Named a Council of Library Resources fellow in 1973, Dr. Rochell this year received both the John Cotton Dana Public Relations award of the American Library Association and the American Institute of Architects/American Library Association award for the design and programming of branch libraries.

As a resident of Atlanta, Dr. Rochell participated in numerous community and civic projects, including direction of a campaign to build a new $19 million central library and the opening of eight additional branch libraries throughout the city. He has also served on the board of directors of both the Atlanta Council for International Visitors and the Atlanta Arts Festival. A member of the Education Committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Rochell was also library service and educational technology adviser to the Georgia State University media program and to the Clayton Community College Library technical assistants' program.

NINA T. COHEN has been named librarian at Wesleyan University. She succeeds Wyman W. Parker, who retired as librarian on June 30. Previous to her appointment Ms. Cohen was Associate Director of Libraries for Public Services at the University of Washington. For six years beginning in 1967, she was director of the Western New York Library Resources Council in Buffalo and was an adjunct faculty member at the State University of New York (Buffalo)

School of Information and Library Studies. She was previously associated with university and public libraries in Buffalo and Tonawanda, New York.

A graduate of Queens College, Ms. Cohen received her M.A. degree in 1953 from Indiana University. She is a member of the Washington State Library Automation Committee and the Publications Committee of the Association of College and Research Libraries. She has also authored several articles and a chapter on "New Dimensions for Academic Library Services," published in a 1974 Scarecrow Press book, The 3R's System and the Academic Library User in N.Y. State, edited by E. J. Josey.

Wyman Parker had been head librarian at the university since 1956. During his tenure, the facility's holdings had been increased from approximately 400,000 volumes to more than 750,000, and a separate science library had been added.
