

spring. On May 17, Sessions said libraries are used for recruiting, targeting, and by hostile foreign intelligence gatherers in a surreptitious fashion. Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-VT), chairing the FBI oversight hearing of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said "the Bureau was utilizing investigative techniques that seemed more likely to harass innocent Americans than to help the Bureau combat crime." Sen. Ernest Hollings (D-SC), chairing a hearing April 20 on the FBI's budget, also questioned Sessions about the program, which Hollings likened to attempting to control people's thoughts.

The ALA Council passed on July 13 a Resolution in Opposition to FBI Library Awareness Program (CD #77.4), condemning this and similar programs, and calling for their immediate cessation. Readers needing further information should see the extensive documentation provided to Council by the Intellectual Freedom Committee. CD #41-41.4 includes testimony from the June 20 hearing, an unclassified version of the FBI report, "The KGB and the Library Target," released at the May 17 hearing, and the transcript of the closed meeting in January of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science with an FBI representative.

Materials prepared by the ALA Office of Intellectual Freedom include a chronology, a list of institutions verified to have been visited by the FBI, and a list of the states which have laws protecting the confidentiality of library records. Also included is an OIF-prepared summary of the 46 pages of heavily excised documents about the program released in July by the FBI in response to a lawsuit filed by the National Security Archive and People for the American Way. The documents were initially requested under the Freedom of Information Act in July 1987 by the National Security Archive, a nonprofit public interest scholarly research institute and library in Washington, D.C. ALA also requested the same documentation in October, and filed an additional FOIA request in December.

Retirements

LOIS CARRIER, reference librarian, Humanities/Social Sciences Division at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, retired after 22 years of service.

LAURENDA DANIELLS, university archivist at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, retired in June. She was first appointed as a librarian in special collections in 1970. She has recently been recognized by the Alumni Association with a special merit award for her outstanding contribution to the University community.

CHESTER DAVIS, government documents librarian at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, retired in June.

MARY-JO DI MUCCIO, administrative librarian at the Sunnyvale Patent and Information Clearinghouse, California, retired on May 15, after 16 years of service with the city of Sunnyvale. She is an active member in the American Library Association, California Library Association, Catholic Library Association, and Special Libraries Association. She served as president of the Catholic Library Association from 1973-1975, and managed the only Patent Depository Library in subject order outside of Washington, D.C.

MARY ELIZABETH DUDMAN, assistant librarian and head of circulation for Ladd Library, Bates College, Lewiston, Maine, retired August 31. She had been on the staff since 1969. She was president of the Maine Library Association (1970-1971), and served as the librarian of the Army Air Force School during World War II.

MARIANNE GOLDSTEIN, modern languages and literatures subject specialist at SUNY/Buffalo's Lockwood Library, retired in May after 21 years of service. In 1974 she co-founded ACRL's Western European Language Specialist Discussion Group (now an ACRL section) and later served as secretary and a program committee member. In 1983, she organized a Public Conference on the Roots of The Holocaust. She also played a leading role in procuring a $155,000 Title II-C grant to provide full machine-readable records to the microform collection in Latin American Documents. Goldstein began her career at Buffalo in 1966 with an appointment to the Catalog Department, shortly after which she was transferred to Lockwood Library's Reference Department with responsibility for materials selection in Spanish, Portuguese, and German literature.

DOROTHY GROSSER, cataloger at Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, retired after 27 years of service.

DEAN HALLIWELL, university librarian at the University of Victoria, British Columbia, retired June 10, 1988, having served since July 1, 1960. Halliwell was president of the British Columbia Library Association, the Canadian Association of College and University Libraries, and the Canadian Library Association, and a member of the Council of the American Library Association. In recognition of his service to the University, Halliwell has been named university librarian emeritus.

MARGARET HUFF, dean of the Gressette Learning Resources Center at Orangeburg-Calhoun Technical College, South Carolina, retired May 31 after 20 years of service. She was responsible for researching and purchasing books for the college before it opened in 1968. She also developed the circulation and cataloging systems, prepared manuals and bibliographies, developed a library instruction course and completed all of the tasks needed to establish a library which meets accreditation standards. Huff was also involved in automating the college's library. She has served on several visiting teams for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and on several licensing teams for the Commission on Higher Education. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and has been listed in Who's Who of American Women and Who's Who in the South and Southeast. In addition, she has served as the first chair of the South Carolina Technical Colleges' Learning Resources Personnel group, was active in the S.C. Technical Education Association Executive Board for 5 years, and was elected Outstanding Educator of the Year-Administrative/Manager category for 1987-1988. In March 1988 she was named one of the three Outstanding Educators of the Year.

ROBERT M. HAYES, dean of the Graduate Library and Information Science School, UCLA, retired June 30 after 14 years in that position. He will return to teaching at the School and serve as interim dean through December 31 while the School searches for a successor. Hayes holds bachelor's, master's, and Ph.D. degrees in mathematics from UCLA. In 1964 he joined the UCLA Graduate Library Faculty and began to design the first information science program within a traditional library setting.

Robert M. Hayes

Hayes received the Beta Phi Mu Award from the American Library Association in 1985, and won the Alumni Association's 1986 Professional Achievement Award. He also served as president of the American Society for Information Science and the ALA Information Science and Automation Division. He served as a Presidential appointee on the Advisory Committee to the White House Conference on Library and Information Service held in November 1979. He was also chairman of the task force of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science, adviser to the National Library of Medicine, the Office of Technology Assessment, the U.S. Department of Education, and many other educational agencies. Moreover, he has been a consultant to the governments or national institutions of Saudi Arabia, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Norway, Sweden, Australia, Taiwan and India.

GALINA KRAFT, cataloger of materials in Russian and other Slavic languages, recently retired from Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, after 16 years of service.

ELIZABETH GRACE TODD, head of cataloging at the Bancroft Library, University of California, Berkeley, retired this summer. Todd was appointed to the position in April 1964. She presided over the transition from the manual card-catalog production system to a fully automated cataloging system. She also managed the analysis and integration of the catalog of the Rare Books and Special Collections Department following its merger with the Bancroft Library in 1969. Todd also assisted in the development of a separate Copy Cataloging Unit.

KENNETH E. TOOMBS, director of libraries at the University of South Carolina, Columbia, retired June 30, after serving in that position since September 1967. His 20 years of service ranks him as one of the senior library directors in the Association of Research Libraries. He served as a member of ARL and various offices in state, regional and national organizations. Toombs joined the library staff at Louisiana State University as special assistant to the director of libraries in 1956. Until 1963 he held increasingly more responsible positions in the LSU library administration, including head of circulation, head of the Social Science Division, and assistant director of libraries. His accomplishments include planning the construction of USC's main library, and organizing and developing SOLINET, with John H. Gribbin. He was recognized by the Southeastern Library Association with their highest award. Toombs has served as a consultant for over 20 library buildings and will continue his consulting activities in his retirement.

ELIZABETH TURK, serials acquisitions librarian at Auburn University, Alabama, retired at the end of December 1987.

MARY D. WALTERS, assistant university librarian for Collection Development Programs at California State University, Los Angeles, retired July 4 after 14 years of service. She has served on several ALA committees as well as on ALA Council (1982-1986), and served on the Committee on the Status of Women in Librarianship for four years. Her proposal for an oral history project on "Minority Women's Personal Perspectives on Librarianship" received a 1988 ALA Goal Award.

WILLIAM E. WENZ, director of library personnel at the University of California, Berkeley, retired July 31, 1988, after 20 years of service. He began his career at CU in the campus personnel office in 1957, and in 1964 became the first personnel director for the library. Wenz served as a member of the Library Council Personnel Committee from 1964 to his retirement; a member of the Hoos Committee in 1967, a non-Senate academic group; and was also a member of the Task Forces for Clerical and Librarian representation units in 1982-1983.

Deaths

BETTY CARHART, former chief cataloger at the Center for Research Libraries, died June 4, 1987, after an extended illness. Her professional career started with her return to Denver when she graduated from the University of Denver Graduate Library School. She was the librarian of Greenlee Elementary School and then an assistant librarian at South High in Denver. In 1959 she became the chief librarian for a school in suburban Chicago. She was soon elected secretary of the American Association of School Librarians. She also spent a year as the assistant cataloger at Roosevelt University Library. In 1965 she was appointed chief cataloger at the Center for Research Libraries. Carhart wound up her professional career doing extended substitute work in academic libraries in the New York area. She also did the cataloging and editing for two editions of the METRO CAP catalog.

DONNA CHEN, former interlibrary loan librarian at Ohio University, Athens, died on April 30, at the age of 52. She had resigned from her position in August 1987 to accept a graduate faculty appointment at Kent State University.

INGEBORG S. KAUFFMAN, librarian at the California School of Professional Psychology, Fresno, died May 9, 1988, after serving 15 years at that institution. She was born in Berlin, Germany, in 1928, and in 1939 she and her parents moved to Tampa, Florida, where she grew up. She attended several universities and earned progressively advanced degrees in Spanish, English, French, library science, Russian, and educational psychology. She was a member of the Woman's International League of Peace and Freedom and the Social Action Committee at Temple Beth Israel, in Fresno. She had established and expanded the library at Temple Beth Israel where a special plaque is displayed on the wall of the Temple library in honor of her work. In 1973 she was met with the challenge of building a complete professional library from three cartons of donated books housed in the corner of one room on the CSPP-Fresno. An Inge S. Kauffman Library Fund has been established and will function as an endowment to the library and be used exclusively to carry on the goals Inge had established.

DONA LLOYD, assistant catalog librarian at North Texas State University, died May 3, 1988. She held bachelor's and MLS degrees from the University of North Texas, and had served both in the University of Texas at Austin Libraries and as the Rusk County librarian.

ANN TELFAIR JOHNSON RITCHIE, interlibrary loan librarian at Ohio University, Athens, died May 22, at the age of 79. She began work as Ohio University's education librarian, and became interlibrary loan librarian when Alden Library opened in 1969. She had left the library in 1974.

PAUL SABOVIK, catalog department librarian at the University of Arizona, Tucson, died July 14, 1988. He came to the United States in the 1960s after spending 10 years as a political prisoner in his native Czechoslovakia. He had served more than 10 years with the library and university. Sabovik earned his Ph.D. in cultural anthropology from Yale University in 1973 and his MLS from SUNY/Geneseo in 1977.

RUTH SCIBIRD, curator of the Stanford Collection and a member of the Stanford University Library staff for forty years until her retirement in 1962, died recently at the age of 96. She attended Washington State College until illness forced her to withdraw in her junior year. She was later persuaded to attend Stanford and work in the library. In 1922 she became an assistant in the Reference Serials Division. In 1924 she became an assistant in the Reference Division and remained there until her retirement. In 1951 she was appointed curator of the Stanford Collection. Upon her retirement the University trustees appointed her curator emerita. ■■

PUBLICATIONS

● Acquisitions Manual: Guidelines for Librarians, Bookdealers, and Publishers, edited by William Ilgen and Deborah Jakubs (95 pages, 1988), has been published as number 21 in SALALM's Bibliography and Reference Series. The manual is trilingual in English, Spanish, and Portuguese. Its two parts address in detail the major areas of the acquisitions process for Latin American materials from initial offer to final payment. Part I presents bookdealers and publishers with a series of norms for the elaboration of their lists and catalogs and libraries with similar norms for the preparation of their order forms. Part II outlines the steps normally taken by libraries in selecting and acquiring materials for their collections, and discusses the implications of these procedures for all concerned. The price is $18 (plus $2 shipping, prepayment required) and may be ordered from the SALALM Secretariat, 728 State Street, Madison, WI 53706. ISBN 0-917617-18-5.

● AIDS: A Guide to Research Resources, prepared by Thomas Lindsay et al. (43 pages, June 1988), was first prepared by the Library of the University of California, Berkeley, as a handout for a seminar given in October 1987 for faculty researching AIDS from a wide range of perspectives. The guide contains 217 annotated entries for index and abstract services, monographs, periodicals, articles, conference proceedings, and databases relating to the subject. Five broad subject areas (public health and biomedical, business and economics, education and psychology, the humanities, and legal issues) allow for some specialization. Particularly useful is a "Chronology of Landmark Developments" that highlights the years before the disease was identified as AIDS. Copies are $15 until September 30, 1988, $20 thereafter, with proceeds going to support the work of the Library's AIDS Information and Awareness Project. Order from AIDS Publication, Room 245, Main Library, University of California, Berkeley, CA 94720.

● American Library History: A Bibliography of Dissertations and Theses, by Arthur P. Young (469 pages, 3d revised ed., July 1988), contains 964 annotated listings of master's theses and doctoral dissertations as well as 219 unannotated citations to papers and reports. Ranging over the past 60 years, the entries are grouped by 14 different topics, those of particular interest being "College and University Libraries," "Library Associations," and "Biographical Studies." Copies may be ordered for $39.50 from Scarecrow Press, 52 Liberty Street, Metuchen, NJ 08840. ISBN 0-8108-2138-9.

A nice companion piece to the above work is Arthur Young's Higher Education in American Life, 1636-1986: A Bibliography of Dissertations and Theses (448 pages, June 1988). This bibliography covers such crucial issues as philosophy of education, business and education curriculum, church and state, finances, military education, Native Americans, liberal arts, state aid, student activism, and women. Studies of individual institutions, biographies, and topical works comprise the majority of the 4,500 citations. The book is available for $49.95 from Greenwood Press, 88 Post Road West, P.O. Box 5007, Westport, CT 06881. ISBN 0-313-25352-8.

● Basic Statistics for Librarians, by I.S. Simpson (242 pages, April 1988), illustrates techniques for performing such statistical analyses as estimating the use of core collections, the coverage and overlap of abstracting journals, or allocating sufficient
