146 Biographies of America's Greatest Popular Songwriters

AMERICAN SONGWRITERS

by David Ewen 489pp. 1986 ISBN 0-8242-0744-0 LC 86-24654
$50 U.S. and Canada, $60 other countries.

American Songwriters is a definitive guide to 146 of the composers and lyricists who created the landmarks of the American popular song—from Stephen Foster to Bruce Springsteen.

More than a revision of Popular American Composers (1962) and Popular American Composers: First Supplement (1972), American Songwriters has been expanded to include lyricists as well as composers—55 new profiles on such lyricists as Oscar Hammerstein II and composer-lyricists like Stevie Wonder. In addition, David Ewen has thoroughly revised his profiles of composers included in the two earlier publications, updating the performance history of their music.

200 Years of American Songwriting

Spanning a period of 200 years, David Ewen has selected those men and women who have a permanent place in the history of American songwriting, among them:

- Irving Berlin ● Chuck Berry
- Sammy Cahn ● Hoagy Carmichael ● George M. Cohan
- Bob Dylan ● Stephen Foster
- George Gershwin ● Woody Guthrie ● W.C. Handy ● Jerome Kern ● Carole King ● Alan Jay Lerner ● Cole Porter ● Richard Rodgers ● Carly Simon
- Stephen Sondheim ● Bruce Springsteen.

Performance History of 5,500 Songs

American Songwriters chronicles the complete performance history of more than 5,500 songs, and describes how they came to be written, who introduced and recorded them, as well as listing the movies and Broadway and Off Broadway musicals in which many of them have been performed. A 36-page Song Index provides a list of every song discussed.

HOAGY CARMICHAEL,
FATS DOMINO, CAROLE KING,
BOB DYLAN, GEORGE GERSHWIN

Covers All The Major American Musical Styles

American Songwriters provides in-depth information on:
● Ragtime ● Minstrelsy ● Tin Pan Alley ● Broadway ● Rock ● Jazz
● Blues ● Folk ● Country & Western ● Soul.

Convenient and Easy-to-Use

Arranged alphabetically, the entries in American Songwriters provide a 1500-5000 word essay on each biographee and offer:

- A summary of the composer or lyricist's body of work.
- Early development and influences.
- Views of the major music critics.
- Discussion of major works.
- Information on the medium in which the songs first appeared, and the performers who introduced them.
- The performance history of each song, including who recorded them and in which movies or Broadway shows they appeared.

- For songs appearing in Broadway or Off Broadway musicals—a brief summary of the show and its book, along with production details, film adaptations, awards, and performance runs of major productions.
- A bibliography of critical commentary.

Retirements

WILNORA ARNOLD, coordinator of the Library Technology program at San Antonio College, Texas, retired December 20, 1986. A member of the library faculty since 1961, Arnold taught various courses in the Library Technology program for the past 18 years.

GEORGENE BIAS, library director at St. Philip's College, San Antonio, Texas, since 1974, retired in December with the title of Professor Emeritus. A member of the staff of St. Philip's for 26 years, Bias was honored by the Alamo Community College Board of Trustees with a public citation for distinguished and dedicated service.

GIERT J. CLAUSMAN, librarian at the New York University Medical Center, New York City, retired January 1 after more than 31 years of service.

MYRON J. JACOBSTEIN, director of the Law Library at Stanford University since 1963, has announced his retirement effective August 31 of this year.

TUNG KING NG, head of the Asian Studies Library at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, for 25 years, retired in December.

MARGARET OAKSFORD, librarian of the Hotel Administration Library at Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, retired after a 25 years of service. Oaksford's time at Cornell was interrupted by several years during which she earned her MLS from the Catholic University School of Library Science and worked at the University of Maryland Library. She began at Cornell in 1961 as a searcher in the Acquisition Department, serving subsequently as catalog librarian, reference librarian on special assignment for the South Central Research Library Council, reference librarian in the Uris Library, and, since 1978, hotel administration librarian. Oaksford was chief librarian of the former College Center of the Finger Lakes, and functioned as a senior reference librarian in the Tompkins County Public Library. She also established and ran her own inn in Groton, New York.

CARL H. SACHTLEBEN, director of libraries at Western Michigan University since 1971, retired January 5. Sachtleben began his career at Valparaiso University in 1946. From 1950 to 1957 he was librarian at the St. Louis Lutheran High School, and from 1958 to 1964 he worked in various capacities at St. Louis University, becoming assistant to the director of libraries. In 1964 he became director of libraries at Valparaiso, and was later named library director at Western Michigan. An ALA member and a member of the Michigan Library Association, Sachtleben has served on numerous committees, and has been active in Beta Phi Mu, the Lutheran Academy for Scholarship, as well as the Rotary Club and the Lutheran Church.

Deaths

ALLEN ASAF, cataloger in the Grolier Club Library, New York City, died suddenly November 28, 1986, at the age of 28. Asaf had been with the Club since 1982 and had developed a wide acquaintance among the membership. He compiled complete lists of the Club's publications and exhibitions for the 1984 centennial and was co-compiler of a centennial membership list.

WILLIE MAE DAWKINS, coordinator of reference services at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside, died November 23, 1986, in Milwaukee. She was 39. Dawkins joined the library in 1981 as a reference-instruction librarian after receiving her MLS from the University of Maryland (1979). From 1969 to 1977, following graduation from North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College, she was a researcher for Howard University, and worked in local and network radio and taught school as a substitute. Dawkins served as a member of the ALA Black Caucus and Junior Members' Round Table Minority Recruitment Committee. She served as co-chair of the ACRL Black Studies Librarianship Committee and on the Copyright Committee, and was a member of the Wisconsin Library Association and the Wisconsin Association of Academic Libraries. Deeply involved in campus minority affairs at UW-Parkside, Dawkins was also active in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

ROBERT HAMMOND HAYNES, who retired as assistant librarian of Harvard College in 1963, died December 6, 1986, the day after his 90th birthday. Haynes received his bachelor's degree from Bowdoin College in 1919, and studied at the graduate level at Harvard from 1919 to 1922, returning in 1928 as assistant in reference and circulation in the College Library. In 1931 he became superintendent of circulation and was appointed assistant librarian in 1937. Haynes assumed additional responsibilities as curator of the Theodore Roosevelt Collection in 1956, and took special interest in the Winsor Memorial Map Room. For many years he was chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Cambridge, Massachusetts, Public Library, and was part owner of the Old Farmers' Almanac.

MARTHA P. LAWRY, assistant professor emeritus of the Ohio State University Libraries, died December 16, 1986, at her home in Columbus. Lawry held several positions during a decade of service at Ohio State, including head of the Women's Studies Library (1979-80) and head of the Catalog Department (1982-86). Lawry was an active member of many professional organizations and was a member of the Executive Board of the Academic Library Association of Ohio and of the Board of Directors of the Ohio Library Foundation. She was co-editor and later editor (1979-80) of Women's Studies Review. A strong advocate for the involvement of technical services librarians in library user education, Lawry held a bachelor's degree (with distinction) from the College of Wooster, a master's in speech from Northwestern University, and an MLS from Case Western Reserve University, and was a member of several honor societies including Phi Beta Kappa and Beta Phi Mu.

GLORIA LYERLA, head of interlibrary loan at Texas Tech University, Lubbock, died suddenly December 15, 1986. Lyerla's career at Texas Tech spanned more than 30 years. She served as reserve, periodicals, and reference librarian before assuming her position in Interlibrary Loan in 1973, and was instrumental in establishing interlibrary loan services in the Southwest region.

KATE MCKAY, copyright reference librarian at the New York University Law Library, New York City, since 1978, died October 11, 1986. McKay was a longtime member of the American Association of Law Libraries and served on its Copyright Committee.

TOSHIO SASAKI, professor at the University of Library and Information Science in Tsukuba, Japan, died November 7, 1986, at the age of 62. The doyen of Japanese agricultural librarians, Sasaki was chosen in 1961-62 to study at the School of Library Service at Columbia University. Returning to Japan, he developed new library services at the University of Tokyo, remaining as associate librarian (in Japanese terms the head librarian) for 20 years, during which he introduced modern library methods and services to faculty and students. He assumed his position in Tsukuba in 1983. Together with a few leaders in the field of Japanese agricultural libraries, Sasaki founded the Japan Association of Agricultural Librarians and Documentalists (JAALD) in 1966 and had served on its board of directors since that time, becoming vice president in 1980.

MURIEL SPAULDING, a former librarian at the University of California, Davis, died December 1, 1986. Spaulding came to UC-Davis in 1949 following service in World War II and was a catalog librarian, serving briefly as head of the Catalog Department. From 1950 to 1960 she worked in the Reference Department before returning to the Catalog Department. Spaulding retired in 1971.

MARJORIE STONE, retired librarian-bibliographer in the former Grey Herbarium of Harvard University, died August 19, 1986. Stone came to Harvard in 1931 as bibliographer of the Gray Card Index, the index to new names and new combinations of vascular plants native to the New World. In 1950-51 she became librarian, retiring in 1954, the year the Grey Herbarium and Arnold Arboretum libraries were combined. ■■
