•The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee has honored Egypt's first lady, Susan Mubarak, with the University Award for her outstanding leadership in the promotion of libraries and library services for children in Egypt. The award was presented in April in New York City. Mubarak is the founder of the Integrated Care Society for Primary School Children, begun in 1977, which is involved in several aspects of education, health, and social services in more than 17 primary schools. In the area of education, the Society promotes the establishment of school libraries. Another important project under Mubarak's leadership is the building of the new Bibliotheca Alexandria, to be completed in 1995. The aim of the project is to establish a seat of learning in Alexandria with a public research library as its core. ■■

Profiles

BEVERLY P. LYNCH, university librarian at the University of Illinois, Chicago, since 1977, has been appointed dean of the University of California, Los Angeles, Graduate School of Library and Information Science, effective September 1. She will become the first woman ever to serve in this position.

Beverly P. Lynch

Lynch earned her bachelor's degree in science from North Dakota State University in 1957, her MLS from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 1959, and her Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin at Madison in 1972. She has served as assistant in the Serials Department at U. of I. (1958-1959), assistant cataloger at Marquette University (1959-1963), assistant reference librarian at the Plymouth (England) Public Library (1959-1963), assistant head and head of the Serials Division at Yale University's Sterling Memorial Library (1963-1968), and executive secretary of ACRL (1972-1976). She has taught in the library schools of the University of Wisconsin, the University of Texas, and the University of Chicago.

Lynch was named ACRL's 1981 Academic/Research Librarian of the Year, and in 1985-1986 served as president of the American Library Association. In 1987 the alumni association of the University of Illinois Graduate School of Library and Information Science presented Lynch with its first Distinguished Alumnus Award. Lynch has written extensively on the subject of library management, and her articles have appeared in such publications as College & Research Libraries, Library Trends, and Administrative Science Quarterly. She is the editor of four books, including her most recent, Academic Libraries in Transition (Neal Schuman, 1989).

CHRISTOPHER A. BEAN, readers' services librarian at Sweet Briar College since 1978, has been appointed director of Howe Library at Shenandoah College and Conservatory, Winchester, Virginia, effective June 15. Bean received his bachelor's degree from the University of New Hampshire (1973), his MLS from the University of Rhode Island (1976), a master's in history from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University (1979), and is currently pursuing a Ph.D. in history from the University of Virginia. Prior to joining Sweet Briar College, Bean held positions at the University of Rhode Island (1975-1976) and Virginia Tech (1977). He has been active in local and state library associations, and has contributed articles and book reviews to several library periodicals including Online and Library Software Review.

Christopher A. Bean

JAMES MICHALCO, acting president of the Research Libraries Group, Stanford, California, for the past year, has been named president of that corporation. Under his leadership last year, RLG began two new cooperative programs to improve access to research information in particular subject areas and formed a new Strategic Technical Planning Committee of university and industry experts to help design the future computing and communications environment. Michalko joined RLG in 1980 and has served as its chief financial officer since the early 1980s; in 1985 he was named vice president for finance and administration. Before joining RLG, Michalko served as business administrator and assistant director for administration at the University of Pennsylvania Libraries. He holds MLS and MBA degrees from the University of Chicago, and a bachelor's degree in English literature and political science from Georgetown University.

James Michalko

MAXINE RENEKER, associate dean for public services at Arizona State University Libraries, Tempe, has been appointed director of instructional and research services at Stanford University, California, effective sometime in August. Reneker has worked in various management positions at the libraries of Columbia University, the University of Colorado at Boulder, and the University of Chicago. She also received a Council on Library Resources Management Internship at Columbia. A magna cum laude graduate of Carleton College in Minnesota, Reneker received her MLS from the University of Chicago, where she was elected to Beta Phi Mu, the librarian's honor fraternity, and is currently working on her Ph.D. in library services from Columbia.

People in the news

MARY BEILBY, collection development librarian at the State University of New York at Cortland, has been selected to receive the 1989 Friend of SUNYLA (State University of New York Librarians Association) Award, which was presented at the 21st Annual SUNYLA Conference on June 8. The award is presented annually to individuals or organizations making significant contributions to the furtherance of SUNYLA objectives. Beilby, a charter member of SUNYLA, has been a regular participant in chairing sessions and planning programs for annual conferences, served as treasurer from 1985-87, and has been a member of the Automation Committee since its inception.

SAMUEL Y. FUSTUKJIAN, library director at the University of South Florida, St. Petersburg, was recently elected president of the Tampa Bay chapter of the American University of Beirut's Alumni Association for 1989-1991. Fustukjian attended AUB from 1967-1969 as a graduate student and spent 1983 at AUB as director of its medical, engineering and architecture, science and agriculture, farm, and Jaffet undergraduate libraries at the invitation of AUB president Malcolm Kerr. Months after Fustukjian left Beirut, Kerr was shot and killed; an associate, Peter Kilbourne, was kidnapped and killed; and Fustukjian's tennis partner, Tom Sutherland, was kidnapped. The Tampa Bay chapter of the AUB Alumni Association has over 100 members, and the group plans to raise funds and consciousness about AUB and its role in bringing peace to the Middle East.

LESTER POURCIAU, director of libraries and associate vice president for academic affairs-administration at Memphis State University, was chosen 1989 Librarian of the Year by the Memphis Library Council. The award was presented during the celebration of National Library Week (April 9-15) and MLC's 25th anniversary. He is the first recipient of this award, which will become an annual event.

T. MICHAEL WOMACK, archivist in the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library at Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut, has received a Mid-Atlantic Regional Archives Conference Finding Aids Award for his registers of two manuscript collections relating to German immigration in Texas in the 19th century. The award was presented at the Conference in May. The two collections are the Archive of the Society for the Protection of German Immigrants in Texas and the Friedrich Armand Strubberg Collection. In producing registers of the two collections, Womack retained and interpreted the complex arrangement imposed on the papers by German archivists, fitting this system into the Beinecke Library's format for archival registers. Extensive cross-referencing was needed to show how the two collections relate to each other.

Retirements

RICHARD E. CHAPIN, director of the Michigan State University Libraries since 1959, will retire on July 1. Before joining the staff at MSU in 1955 as associate director, Chapin served as assistant director of the School of Library Science at the University of Oklahoma, circulation librarian at the University of Illinois, and reference librarian at Florida State University. A life member of ALA, Chapin has served on many committees and has been particularly active in those relating to copyright law. He has been active in many other national library organizations including the Association of Research Libraries (Board of Directors), the Center for Research Libraries (Board of Directors), the OCLC Users Council (President), and the Research Libraries Advisory Committee to OCLC. In addition, he has played a key role in fostering state-wide library cooperation through his participation in the Michigan Library Association, serving as treasurer (1961-63) and president (1966-67), and as a founding member of the Michigan Library Consortium. Chapin has served as a library consultant not only in Michigan but also nationally and in Brazil and Vietnam. An active member of the campus and surrounding communities, Chapin received the University's Distinguished Faculty Award in 1988.

Speakers wanted on scientific information

The ACRL Science and Technology Section's 1990 Program Planning Committee is looking for speakers for the section's program at ALA Annual Conference in Chicago in 1990. The program will be on problems encountered in disseminating or spreading scientific information, and there will be a keynote speaker and six breakaway sessions. Each session will be offered twice, and people will have an opportunity to attend three of the six sessions.

At present the themes of the breakaway sessions will be as follows: government information; costs, especially journals; different formats; conference proceedings; bringing science to the public; and science databases. If you are interested in being considered as a speaker for either the keynote presentation or one of the breakaway sessions, contact: Caroline Harnly, Reference Department, J. Paul Leonard Library, San Francisco State University, 1630 Holloway Ave., San Francisco, CA 94132; (415) 338-1454.

MARY SEVILLA, head of the Loan Division at Stanford University's Graduate Library, California, retired in April after 32 years of service. Sevilla also served in Stanford's former Western Civilization Library, in the Circulation Division of the old Main Library, and in the Meyer Library. Her support of opportunities for the disadvantaged was recognized by the Stanford Employment Experience Program, which she served as a member of the Advisory Board. She was one of the founders of Stanford's Asian Staff Forum and was also active in the realization of affirmative action principles throughout University Libraries.

Deaths

LARRY EARL BONE, retired director of libraries at Mercy College, Dobbs Ferry, New York, died of cancer in April. He had retired from Mercy at the end of January. During a 35-year career in libraries, Bone served as assistant head of the Gifts Section at the Library of Congress; deputy librarian at the American Library in Paris; assistant director of the Graduate School of Library Science at the University of Illinois; librarian at George Mason College; director of the Burrow Library at Rhodes College; and assistant director for public services at the Memphis and Shelby County Public Library. He was a visiting professor at ten graduate schools of library science, and was the recipient of a Council on Library Resources fellowship in 1974. He served as president of ALA's Reference and Adult Services Division in 1978-79, and was the editor of three books and two issues of Library Trends.

Larry Earl Bone

During his directorship at Mercy College, Bone built the library system to its current holdings of more than 300,000 volumes, and planned and supervised a 5,200-square foot addition to the library at the College's main campus in 1987. He oversaw the expansion of the College Library to six campuses. At the time of his retirement, the College dedicated the Larry Earl Bone Seminar Room and established a fund for the Larry Earl Bone Collection in American Literature, to which contributions are still being made.

P. ANNE JENSEN, former head librarian at American University, Washington, D.C., died in March at the age of 94.

ARDIS LODGE, retired Reference Department head at the University of California at Los Angeles, died in February from injuries received in an automobile accident. In 1933, after graduating from the UC Berkeley Library School, Lodge went to the two-year-old UCLA campus where she worked with her colleagues to make the most of the Depression-starved reference collection. In 1949-50 she was chosen to spend a year as an exchange librarian working in the pre-eminent Columbia University Library Reference Department. In 1955 she conceived and edited New Reference Books at UCLA, a quarterly publication listing key additions to the collection which was in demand nationwide for many years as the only publication that regularly updated successive editions of Guide to Reference Books. In 1960 Lodge began her term as department head and retired from that position over twenty years ago.

MAE MCKERNAN, cataloger in the University of Nebraska at Omaha Library for 22 years, died in April after a short illness. McKernan retired in 1987 after a distinguished career as special collections and monographs cataloger. She guided the Technical Services Department through three cataloging codes, OCLC, and Dataphase installations. She began the cataloging of the Afghanistan Collection and served as acting head of the Technical Services Department from 1974 to 1979. McKernan received her bachelor's degree from the University of Nebraska at Omaha in 1962 and her MLS from the University of Denver in 1963.

ROBERT A. MILLER, professor emeritus and retired director of Indiana University Libraries, died in March. During a 30-year career as director of libraries, Miller oversaw the building of the Lilly Library and the Main Library on the Bloomington campus, and coordinated the library system on each of the eight campuses. He retired in 1972 and continued teaching until 1973. Miller received bachelor's degrees from the University of Iowa and Columbia University, and a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. He served as director of libraries at the University of Nebraska from 1936 to 1942.

DOROTHY M. SCHULLIAN, the first curator of the Cornell University Library's History and Science Collections, died in April after an extended illness. Schullian first went to Ithaca in 1927 when, after receiving her bachelor's degree from Western Reserve University, she was considering Cornell for graduate study. Chicago was more persuasive, however, and Schullian subsequently received her Ph.D. in Latin from the University of Chicago in 1931. After three years as a Fellow of the American Academy in Rome, she taught ancient languages for five years at Albion College. In 1944 she returned to Cleveland and began an 18-year association with the National Library of Medicine, beginning as an assistant curator and eventually becoming chief of the History of Medicine Division. Schullian was lured to Ithaca in 1961 to work with the late Howard Adelman. Over the next 11 years she guided Cornell's second rare book department from the 4,500 volumes in the Adelman Collection in 1961 to the 25,000 volumes it contained in 1972, when Schullian retired.

Working on her own time, Schullian edited for 33 years the "Notes and Events" section of the Journal of the History of Medicine and Allied Sciences. She also published nearly a hundred books, articles, and reviews on the bibliographic, social, and cultural implications of the historical development of medicine and science. ■■
