

Martha J. Bailey has published the second book in her series on women scientists—American Women in Science: 1950 to the Present: A Biographical Dictionary (ABC-CLIO, 1998). This includes 300 women in science, engineering, mathematics, and social and behavioral sciences. The first volume in the series is American Women in Science: Colonial Times to 1950: A Biographical Dictionary (1994).

William R. Burk, librarian at the John N. Couch Biology Library at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (UNC-CH), has been elected a Fellow of the Ohio Academy of Science. He is one of 48 scientists, engineers, and educators chosen. Fellows are members of the Ohio Academy of Science who have rendered some special service to the academy or have made extensive, productive scientific, technological, or educational contributions to society. Burk cofounded the Triangle Area Mushroom Club, a nature group that hunts and identifies local fungi and mushrooms. He has written 15 journal articles and a book on North American Gasteromycetes (mushrooms). Burk has served the UNC-CH since 1979.

Diane Warner, assistant librarian and cataloguer at the Texas Tech University, will learn about British cataloguing and reference procedures at the John Rylands University Library at the University of Manchester, England, in an exchange program. Stefanie Hundsberger, of the University of Manchester, is temporarily fulfilling Warner's cataloguing responsibilities at the Texas Tech University Library.

Appointments

James R. Adair Jr. has been appointed director of the ATLA Center for Electronic Texts in Religion (ATLA CETR). CETR is a research and development division of ATLA, developed by the association in collaboration with and located at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia.

Initially Adair will serve as project director of ATLA's journal digitization project ATLAS. He served as manager of Information Technology Services for Scholars Press in Atlanta from 1994–98. Since 1996 he has taught as an adjunct professor at Mercer University in Mason, Georgia.

William J. Crowe has been appointed Kenneth Spencer Research Librarian at the University of Kansas (UK), effective July 1, 1999. Crowe will oversee Spencer library's collection of rare books, manuscripts, archives and other original materials, as well as the Robert J. Dole Archive, which will be housed at the Dole Institute for Public Service and Public Policy. Crowe will also take a leading role in fundraising for UK's libraries and information services. After service in the libraries at Ohio State University and Indiana University during the previous two decades, Crowe came to the UK in 1990 as dean of libraries. In 1996 he was named vice chancellor for information services in addition to his responsibilities as dean of libraries.

William J. Crowe

Armed with a master's degree in library education from the University of Iowa, Kauderer went to Lakeland College in Sheboygan, Wisconsin, for his first library job. He also worked at an Illinois community college, a Chicago high school, and Regis University in Denver before coming to Manatee. He was on the College Center for Library Automation's Advisory Board, where he served as vice-chair, and on the Executive Committee. He served on several standing committees and task forces including the Standing Committees on Bibliographic Quality Control and Resource Management Strategy.

Deaths

Marvin H. Scilken, retired director of the Orange (New Jersey) Public Library, member of the governing council of the ALA and frequent contributor to the New York Times "Letters to the Editor," died February 3 at age 72. Scilken retired from the Orange Public Library in 1993 after 29 years of service. He had served on the ALA's 200-member governing council since 1981. He was also the editor and publisher of the newsletter "U*N*A*B*A*S*H*E*D* Librarian." Scilken entered library work after seeing a public notice in the New York Times in which the State of New York offered to train people to become librarians at the state's expense. Scilken took them up on the offer and attended Pratt Institute, where he was later honored as Alumnus of the Year. In 1966, Scilken testified before the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Anti-Trust and Monopoly on the alleged price fixing of library books. As a result of the hearings, more than 1,000 lawsuits were filed and millions of dollars recovered by local libraries. Shortly before he retired, Scilken led a successful campaign to end Bell Atlantic's plan to charge libraries for non-Bell Atlantic telephone directories. Scilken was attending the Midwinter Meeting of the ALA in Philadelphia at the time of his apparent heart attack.

Eldon Tamblyn, professor emeritus at Portland State University (PSU), passed away at his home in Portland of an apparent heart attack at the age of 70. Tamblyn was head cataloger at PSU from 1967 until his retirement in 1996. During that period he led the catalog unit through several major changes as the catalog moved from cards to microfilm and then to its present online form. Before joining PSU, he was head Slavic cataloger at Stanford University (1964-67) and was Slavic cataloger at Duke University (1962-64). Tamblyn compiled the indexes of several books and publications including C&RL and C&RL News from 1975-90 and he continued to compile the indexes through vol. 55, 1994 and edited the indexes for vol. 56-58 (1995-97). He was a member of several professional organizations including the ALA (since 1968), Oregon State System of Higher Education, and the Western Library Network. ■

These words convey a philosophy long held by Northern Micrographics. It is a philosophy that the tapestry of our past must be preserved, since all learning is based upon past insights.

This preservation takes both the digital and physical form, from CD-ROM to acid-free, reference quality, bound books.

And so we would ask this question of you:

"What do you know that's worth saving?"

Call us and discover more about how we can further preserve the fabric of past knowledge and future insight.

If a Picture is Worth a Thousand Words, a Map
Must be Worth a Million

Libraries are the campus nerve center, tying all departments and disciplines together by their common need for information. As a clearinghouse for all kinds of information, libraries need to provide tools that make information easy to access and understand. One of these is a geographic information system (GIS). A GIS turns ordinary databases into interactive maps and provides tools to query those databases in ways not possible with traditional spreadsheets. A GIS is useful to students and researchers in any discipline from agriculture to zoology. Providing a GIS workstation at the library makes these tools available to the entire campus community, not just one or two departments.

ESRI offers a range of GIS packages for libraries, from ArcView® GIS to the Spatial Database Engine™ (SDE™)—client/server software for managing large spatial databases. For more information about ESRI® GIS solutions, call us today.
