

Correction

Dermatol Pract Concept. 2019;10(1):e2020026. November 4, 2019. DOI: <https://doi.org/10.5826/dpc.1001a26>

Disseminate recurrent folliculitis and hidradenitis suppurativa are associated conditions: Results from a retrospective study of 131 patients with Down syndrome and a cohort of 12,351 pediatric controls

In the article titled “Disseminate recurrent folliculitis and hidradenitis suppurativa are associated conditions: results from a retrospective study of 131 patients with Down syndrome and a cohort of 12,351 pediatric controls” by Sechi et al [1] (<https://dpcj.org/index.php/dpc/article/view/dermatol-pract-concept-articleid-dp0903a03>), published on July 31, 2019, the last

2 authors were omitted in error. These authors should have been listed as Annalucia Viridi and Iria Neri. These authors have no conflicts of interest to disclose, and they contributed significantly to this publication. This article was corrected online on November 4, 2019. The editors regret the error.

Reference

1. Sechi A, Guglielmo A, Patrizi A, Savoia F, Cocchi G, Leuzzi M, Chessa MA, Viridi A, Neri I. Disseminate recurrent folliculitis and hidradenitis suppurativa are associated conditions: results from a retrospective study of 131 patients with Down syndrome and a cohort of 12,351 pediatric controls. Dermatol Pract Concept. 2019;9(3):187-194. DOI: <https://doi.org/10.5826/dpc.0903a03>