

Nina Begičević, IJAHP Editorial Board Member, Elected as University of Zagreb's New Dean of the Faculty of Organization and Informatics

With a total of 58 votes (83%), Associate Professor Nina Begičević Ređep, PhD has been elected the new Dean of the Faculty of Organization and Informatics (FOI) and has a mandate to serve in the position for two years. Her position begins in October 2019, with the beginning of the new 2019/2020 academic year.

Nina Begičević Ređep was born in 1980, in Varaždin. She graduated from the Faculty of Organization and Informatics (FOI), University of Zagreb, in 2003 and two years later she completed her postgraduate Master's degree in Business Management Systems. She was also an U.S. government scholar at the University of Pittsburgh, Katz Graduate School of Business, through the Junior Faculty Development Program (JFDP) from December 2007 to June 2008.

Since 2009, she has been teaching at the Faculty of Organization and Informatics, first as an Assistant Professor, and then as an Associate Professor in business decision making, strategic planning, education technology and the application of digital technologies in education and e-learning.

She has been a member of the Faculty of Organization and Informatics board for the last seven years, and is currently the Vice Dean for scientific research and international relations. In October 2019, she will take over the duty of Dean as the youngest candidate and the first female dean in the history of FOI.

She is a co-author and author of a number of books and monographs, as well as more than 60 scientific articles. She cooperated with some of the most respected scientists and professors in the U.S., such as Thomas L. Saaty, PhD, the inventor, architect and primary theoretician of the Analytic Hierarchy Process (AHP), as well as Enrique Mu, PhD, an expert in the Management of Information Systems and current IJAHP Editor-in-Chief, at the University of Pittsburgh.

Nina Begičević Ređep is also a member of 6 international conference program boards, the editorial board of the international scientific journal IJAHP and is a reviewer for a dozen other international scientific journals. She has received 9 awards for her work in science and education in Croatia and abroad, including an Award for Scientific Achievement and Creativity in AHP (Analytic Hierarchy Process), that she received in Chile in 2007.

We wish Nina great success in her new position and we are very proud that she is part of our AHP/ANP community.
