We have worked very hard this year to transition the Online Journal of Rural Nursing and Health Care to the new format. It has been challenging to say the least, but I believe we now have the new look, the author guidelines operational, and the new e-mail account set up (rural.nurse.organization@gmail.com). We are looking forward to this new set-up and hope that it will facilitate communication and expedite the review process. Please let us know how you like the new look, and “feel” of the Journal.
